	Year 7	Year 8	Year 9
	All About Me	Transactional Writing	Language and Persuasion
Autumn Term 1		You will build on your knowledge of non-fiction from Year 7 and explore a range of ,	transactional text types & their features.	and analysing a wide selection of famous 	historical speeches. You will be able to purpose and audience and apply this	• knowledge to your own writing by	and you will focus on using rhetorical and
•	effectively to elicit an emotive response	, ,	persuasive devices to write and deliver from your readers.	and reviews.	your own persuasive speech .
Autumn Term 2	The Gothic Genre	Detective Fiction	Edgar Allan Poe Here you will expand your knowledge of . , .	the Victorian context from the Gothic in 1	Year 7 to explore a broader genre:
		detective fiction. You will analyse how	, - , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,
	·	writers use language and structure to
	•	create suspense and to mislead readers.	,
		-	of language and figurative techniques conventions in a descriptive task.	inference and deduction skills.	to structure your argument.
Spring Term 1	Introduction to Shakespeare	The Merchant of Venice	Othello
	You have learned about Shakespeare in	Were all Shakespeare comedies funny?	Drawing on your understanding from primary school – here you will expand	Are they still funny today? In this unit,	previous Shakespeare units, in Othello and consolidate your knowledge of key	you will explore the problem play The	you will explore how issues of race and elements of Shakespeare's works. You	Merchant of Venice to look at issues	masculinity are presented in a text. You will learn about dramatic irony, iambic	linked to tolerance of discrimination,	will evaluate how effectively character pentameter, the supernatural and	prejudice and justice. You will analyse	attitudes are conveyed through the use Shakespearean villains and heroes.	Shakespeare use of language .	of language, with a focus on soliloquys .
	Modern Novel: Private Peaceful	Modern Novel: Midwinterblood	Modern novel: Noughts & Crosses
2	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will	We study a contemporary YA novel to	This unit continues to develop your
	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study , as	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism ,	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented
Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I,	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism , as well as introducing key terminology	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the
Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology.	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism , as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character
Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism , as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing . You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing
	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters
Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text.	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story.	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel.
Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of micro-
Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges,	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth.	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description.	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing.
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry
1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places Here you will study a range of poems	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry In Protest Poetry, you will study a range	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry In this unit, you will explore Wilfred
2 Summer Term 1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places Here you will study a range of poems linked to identity and places. You will	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry In Protest Poetry, you will study a range of poems on injustice & discrimination	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry In this unit, you will explore Wilfred Owen's war poetry and compare it to a
2 Summer Term 1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places Here you will study a range of poems linked to identity and places. You will explore key poetry concepts, such as	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry In Protest Poetry, you will study a range of poems on injustice & discrimination to analyse how poets use word choice	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry In this unit, you will explore Wilfred Owen's war poetry and compare it to a range of poems by female poets from
2 Summer Term 1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places Here you will study a range of poems linked to identity and places. You will explore key poetry concepts, such as atmosphere, tone and mood, as well as	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry In Protest Poetry, you will study a range of poems on injustice & discrimination to analyse how poets use word choice and techniques to create specific	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry In this unit, you will explore Wilfred Owen's war poetry and compare it to a range of poems by female poets from the same time period to see how both
2 Summer Term 1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places Here you will study a range of poems linked to identity and places. You will explore key poetry concepts, such as atmosphere, tone and mood, as well as analysing how different places across	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry In Protest Poetry, you will study a range of poems on injustice & discrimination to analyse how poets use word choice and techniques to create specific meanings for the reader. You will have	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry In this unit, you will explore Wilfred Owen's war poetry and compare it to a range of poems by female poets from the same time period to see how both addressed the reality of war. This will
Summer Term 1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places Here you will study a range of poems linked to identity and places. You will explore key poetry concepts, such as atmosphere, tone and mood, as well as analysing how different places across the world are portrayed in a range of	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry In Protest Poetry, you will study a range of poems on injustice & discrimination to analyse how poets use word choice and techniques to create specific meanings for the reader. You will have an opportunity to write your own poem	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry In this unit, you will explore Wilfred Owen's war poetry and compare it to a range of poems by female poets from the same time period to see how both addressed the reality of war. This will consolidate analytical and comparative
2 Summer Term 1 Spring Term	Private Peaceful is a class reader that will introduce you to whole novel study, as well as the context of World War I, linking to the GCSE poetry anthology. You will learn about character arcs and begin to analyse how writer presents particular themes throughout a text. Myths and Legends In this unit, you will study a wide range of myths and legends from different mythologies and cultures from around the world. You will explore the structure and conventions of this text type and use this knowledge to plan & write your own Classic myth. Poetry of Places Here you will study a range of poems linked to identity and places. You will explore key poetry concepts, such as atmosphere, tone and mood, as well as analysing how different places across the world are portrayed in a range of	We study a contemporary YA novel to explore characterization & symbolism, as well as introducing key terminology like motifs and foreshadowing. You will analyse Sedgwick's craft and how he manages to create sympathy for his characters throughout the story. Descriptive Writing In this unit, you will put your creative writing skills to the test by expanding your knowledge of figurative language techniques and increasing your range of ambitious, sophisticated vocabulary through a range of writing challenges, culminating in a GCSE-style description. Protest Poetry In Protest Poetry, you will study a range of poems on injustice & discrimination to analyse how poets use word choice and techniques to create specific meanings for the reader. You will have	This unit continues to develop your understanding of how race is presented through literature. You will analyse the use of effective dialogue and character development, as well as comparing similarities in the attitudes of characters between Othello and this novel. Flash Fiction & Genre Flash fiction allows you to explore narrative writing and perspectives, as well as learning how to build effective characters and dialogue in your own writing. You will study a range of microfiction stories and apply this learning to your own writing. World War One Poetry In this unit, you will explore Wilfred Owen's war poetry and compare it to a range of poems by female poets from the same time period to see how both addressed the reality of war. This will consolidate analytical and comparative